

McPhillamys Gold Project

Project Update

Tony McPaul
Manager Special Projects

Hi, I'm Tony McPaul and I'm part of the Regis team working on the McPhillamys Gold Project, here in Blayney. Since I joined the team in 2016, I've had the opportunity to meet a lot of other locals who have varied interests in the project—including our neighbours and nearby landholders, residents of Kings Plains and Blayney, business people and community groups.

Community feedback

Over the past two weeks we heard from over 300 people at our community Open Days and the community meeting, where locals came with questions and feedback for our Chairman, CEO, staff and technical specialists. I'd like to thank everyone who attended and shared their comments and concerns, productively and respectfully.

Below: Over 160 people attended last week's community meeting.

Concerns and benefits

It's clear from the feedback that the community has concerns about the project but also sees the benefits it could provide for the people of Blayney. The benefits must be shared and the concerns must be properly addressed if the project is to be a success.

Community Consultative Committee (CCC)

There will be many more opportunities for the community to have a say during the project application process, over the next 12-18 months. One way to be involved is through the McPhillamys Community Consultative Committee (CCC), which includes representatives from the local community and councils.

For more information about the CCC and how to get in touch with your representatives, go to www.mcphillamysgold.com or call our office in Blayney (see details below).

Talk to the experts

We will also be holding more Open Days in Blayney, where the community will be able to view detailed technical information about the project and seek information directly from the technical specialists. We will continue to consult the CCC and other stakeholders to determine the best date for that event.

In the meantime, if you have any questions or suggestions, please get in touch. Whether it's dealing with concerns or finding out more about the opportunities, we're committed to working with the local community.

Regards,

Tony McPaul
